

Scenario of creative digital innovation in career counseling/orientation: GETTING TO KNOW ABOUT YOUR TRAINEESHIP ABROAD

Title: GETTING TO KNOW ABOUT YOUR TRAINEESHIP ABROAD

Method of delivery: Virtual, individual, self-learning

Phase of career counseling/orientation: Does that match my goals? Am I willing to decide?

Duration: 15 minutes

Target group: apprentices and VET or high schools students ready to start a traineeship abroad

Size of target group: individual work

Scenario: One of the main objectives of the European Union is to increase the mobility of people. A traineeship in another country is a valuable asset, especially for young people who are in training or who have just finished their studies. Acquiring new professional skills and competences, seeing that there are also different ways of doing one's job, being able to compare experiences and working procedures with professionals from another country are elements of professional growth that are essential for young people who have to deal with an increasingly globalised and rapidly changing world of work. However, the decision to do an internship abroad, can create not only high expectations but also some anxiety even if the apprentice/student knows he will be supported by a sending and a hosting organization. For this reason, in the period between confirmation of participation in a traineeship abroad and departure, it is very important that the trainee/student is in constant contact with both his sending organization and the hosting organization, that he is provided with information in "nuggets", based on the microlearning methodology, possibly in a visual and youth-friendly manner.

Learning settings for this scenario:

- 1. Classical setting: at school
- 2. Setting in a course or measure outside school in an organisation
- 3. Setting in a company
- 4. Individual (or in small groups) shorter and longer guidance phases by educational and vocational counsellors in an organisation
- 5. Transnational "European" learning environments
